

Case Strategy: Extra Deductions

CONNOR

Michael and Katelyn Connor's adjusted gross income this year is projected to be $200,000. Their total net worth is $2 Million, including qualified retirement accounts and other investments.

The Connors' accountant advises them that if nothing changes, their total income tax bill for the current year will be about $46,000. He reminds them that if they wish to make charitable gifts of appreciated property, they can claim a charitable deduction of up to 30% of their adjusted gross income. So far this year, Michael and Katelyn have given $10,000 of highly appreciated securities to their favorite charities. They could deduct up to $50,000 more in charitable gifts this year, but they are not sure which charities they would like to benefit with such a significant current gift.

The Connors' financial advisor introduces them to the concept of a "Donor-Advised Fund" (DAF) with Renaissance Charitable Foundation Inc. The Connors establish a DAF and transfer $50,000 of securities that have doubled in value since they purchased them 10 years ago. Michael and Katelyn select the name of their DAF and make recommendations for the selection of the investment advisor. Each year, they will make recommendations for the distributions that will be paid from their DAF to public charities.

Michael and Katelyn plan to use their new DAF to help their children become more involved in, and more aware of, the pleasure and importance of charitable giving. They include their children in the decision-making process, and allow them to make recommendations for a portion of the DAF's annual distributions to charities.

The $50,000 contribution to the DAF provides a $50,000 income tax deduction and is projected to provide them current income tax savings of $19,000. Michael and Katelyn also avoid $5,000 in state and federal capital gain taxes on the highly-appreciated securities transferred to their Donor Advised Fund. Their total tax savings are $24,000.
